Research Grants

Nomination Process Due Date: October 21, 2009

Posted September 11, 2009

DAAD offers research grants for 10-months stays in Germany to researchers in any fields. Any Emory doctoral student who fits the DAAD conditions of eligibility may apply.

Through an exchange relationship with DAAD, the Laney Graduate School can nominate one applicant as a priority applicant who will be almost certain to receive a DAAD grant. Applicants who are not nominated will still be considered by DAAD, and may receive grants.

To be considered for the nomination, applicants need to submit their completed DAAD application. Here is how the process will work:

1. Complete the DAAD online application. Be sure to consult the Application Guidelines available on the DAAD website (at http://www.daad.org/?p=gradresearch#guidelines).

2. Print out the application form and submit it together with all supporting materials to Leah Carswell at the Laney Graduate School, by Wednesday, October 21, 4:30 pm. Submit the application at the reception desk in Administration 209.

3. The application you submit must be complete and must be assembled in accordance with the instructions from DAAD. Incomplete applications will not be considered for nomination.

4. The Laney Graduate School convenes a faculty review committee to determine which, if any, of the applications will be nominated as a priority application. We will let you know about the result.

5. We will send all applications – the one nominated as a priority application and all others received – to DAAD by the November 15 deadline.

If you do not meet the October 21 deadline of the nomination process, you can always submit your application independently to DAAD, by their November 15 deadline.
