Workshop with Dr. José Bowen on Practical Applications of the Teaching Naked Cycle
Cox Hall Ballroom²

• All participants should bring an idea for a class topic. It can be the same one you use for Microteaching on Thursday. (See below)
• Review the Teaching Naked cycle (under separate cover) and think about/write down the learning outcomes for your topic.
• Then identify the “first exposure content” you might use. Bringing both of these to the workshop will allow for more time on the activity design.
• You should also bring a laptop or tablet with you.

Thursday August 20, 2015
Microteaching
9:30 am – 3:00 pm

• Arrive at the session on time
• Prepared to present a 10-12 minute lesson related to your academic discipline. Note: you should be prepared to present a lesson that you would give in your discipline not a summary of your current or past research.
• You may lecture, lead discussion, work through a problem, or conduct another sort of session relevant to your discipline.
• All rooms are equipped with chalkboards and overhead projectors. If you plan to use PowerPoint slides, please be sure to save your presentation both as a PowerPoint file and a pdf file just in case you experience technical problems.
• Before beginning your presentation you should
  • Specify the educational level of the “students” (e.g., first-year undergraduates, advanced theology or medical students) in your “classroom.”
